Master of Education: Concentration in Middle and Secondary English/Language Arts

Colleen Fairbanks, PhD
cmfairba@uncg.edu
Amy Vetter, PhD
amvetter@uncg.edu
Website link:
http://tehe.uncg.edu/department-programs/english-language-arts/
Why?

- Are you interested in improving your instruction as a middle or high school English teacher?
- Are you interested in becoming a curriculum facilitator in your district?
- Would you like to teach at the community college?
- Do you have goals of completing a doctorate program?

What is the cost? Visit the following link to calculate costs: http://grs.uncg.edu/financial/estimated-cost/

---

Where: Courses will be held at centrally located Guilford County Schools’ facilities, on UNCG campus, and/or online. All courses will take a blended approach, in which students meet face-to-face and online throughout the semesters.

What if I want to take one course to see if I like it? No problem! You can take up to three classes as a VISIONS student. Visit http://grs.uncg.edu/visions/

How do I apply? Contact Dr. Amy Vetter or Dr. Colleen Fairbanks for more information (amvetter@uncg.edu; cmfairba@uncg.edu).

When? Cohort begins Fall 2016

For how long? Sessions typically occur over a 3-year period (students meet once per week during fall & spring). Summer classes are also offered.

What are the requirements? Two years teaching experience and A Licensure in Secondary ELA Education.
“Learning to teach is a process of identity development... it is about choosing yourself, making deeply personal choices about who you are and who you will become as a teacher” – Maxine Greene

Topics Covered
- Youth literacies
- Advanced methods
- Equity in education

Sample Course Titles
- Trends and Issues in Curriculum and Instruction
- Critical Issues in English Language Arts
- Composing Theories in Reading and Writing

Master of Education: Concentration in Middle and Secondary English/Language Arts